This is quite important because not all applications are available on the App Store or Play Store, just a few of them. One would expect that this feature could come as an extra feature in the gallery provided that the developer could request the user's permission to access the gallery. This was not the case. Although it wasn't built-in, one could perform some actions in the application that would allow access to the gallery. For instance, one could perform some actions such as opening the gallery by tapping on the application icon, and after doing so, one could open up the gallery (Camera or Gallery) and
