No major news in the Linux world – problems with at least 4 of the 5 big distros - chintan39 ===== Mister_X This article should be rewritten so as to be more specific. What happens is that the writer calls "reserved core" being big news of the day. There are two core issues being used here: * The kernel that runs on mainboards but which can also be used from the motherboards * The userland that some users expect to be in another OS. There is a third issue: * Fedora doesn't live anymore as Fedora, and is now Fedora Rawhide. Q: Localized XML XPath expressions for LINQ to XML I'm using LINQ to XML to pull information from an XML file, and I'd like the XML reader to display the XPath expressions using the appropriate localization. For example, I'd like the XPath expression "//BizLocation[@BizAddress/text()='WEST BAY']" to be displayed as "West Bay" instead of "WestBay" on the screen. I'm using the BizAddress/text() XPath f30f4ceada
