What's New In?

The Piso Timer is a Windows program which allows an administrator to generate a series of "Access Codes" for a specified duration. The administrator sets the duration and the password is generated and saved in a remote database in the client computer. When a user tries to enter the Access Code the program verifies the password in the database. If the password is correct the Access Code is granted. The Piso Timer includes features like allowing the administrator to block the user from accessing the Task Manager window, kill the program or log off of the computer. The administrator can also add a second code and extend the access time of the first one.
