What's new in Edenbrawl:

(historical game) The Edenbrawl Tournament series, St. Leo's or Edenbrawl are series of historical battle games using maps of the Battle of Crecy. First iteration The first ever Great Battle of Crecy tournament was organised by the United Kingdom War Gaming Society in July and August 2009, as a loose alternative to the over-intense competition of the UK national war gaming championships. The event, held in the Blists Hill Victorian Town recreation area in Bedfordshire, United Kingdom, was reported by several national newspapers and the public had the opportunity to walk through recreated scenes of the battle. The first edition of the tournament was won by Philippa Ironside of the Commonwealth of The United Kingdom and lasted three days. The second edition, held in England, Greece, Spain and the United States, was hosted by Philip Hare and was contested over six days, with France as its main team. St. Leo's Tournament 2011 The 2011 edition of the event was held at the University of Essex in Colchester, United Kingdom on 3-5 March. This tournament was for a more experienced audience, including team captains and seasoned administrators. The participants were the European Allies team, led by French national Gilles Biron and Pedro Coelho of Spain, and consisting of players from France, Portugal, England, Spain, the US, Switzerland, Greece, Holland, Germany and Portugal. The Allies were challenging France in the final on 3 March. France's play was led by its captain Denis Le Roux, and the French team consisted of players from Normandy, Touraine, Poitou, Lower Brittany, Maine, Paris, Poitou-Charente-Maritime, Midi-Pyrénées, Champagne-Ardenne, Ile-de-France, Grand Est, Languedoc-Roussillon, Corsica, Centre, Var and Brittany. St. Leo's 2012 Tournament The 2012 edition of the event was held on 6-9 April in Lynn, United Kingdom, near Colchester. This tournament was for a more experienced audience. The tournament was attended by players from France, England, Spain, the US and Australia, and had its highest entry price yet, £1,000 a team. The venues of the competition were the historic Ballington House and Village Estate on Basildon Hill, and Essex Military Museum in Colchester. The seeds of the tournament are as follows: Te
