FSX: Ben Gurion & Tel Aviv.Q: JQuery - AJAX: How to fire the OnSuccess event if the function returns false For example. I have a function that is called through AJAX, the function returns false and I want to fire an event (OnSuccess), how can I do it? function Test() { return false; } function OnSuccess(result) { alert('success'); } $('#Button').click(function() { $.ajax({ url:'script.php', type: 'POST', data: data, success: Test }); // event firing? return false; }); A: AFAIK, you can't fire an event when the function returns false. You will need a callback function to execute after the data is returned. function test() { return false; } function OnSuccess(result, data, status) { if(status === 'error') { alert('success'); } $('#Button').click(function() { $.ajax({ url:'script.php', type: 'POST', data: data, success: test }); return false; }); Q: Javascript run function when href link is clicked on I have set up a website, that has a breadcrumb at the top. The following is the HTML for the breadcrumb:
