[Latest-2022]

At its core, FIFA is a football game. Its main challenge is to create a faithful recreation of what happens on a football field. There are 24 teams, with 52 licensed players, each with unique attributes and behaviours. The pitch is divided into standard playing areas and infilling zones, with a realistic fabric and consistency of environment. The weather, lighting, and sound effects may be influenced by the game's pitch conditions. The ball comes with seams but its shape and size can change depending on pitch conditions. The ball touches the ground when it is struck and the curvature of the pitch affects the movement of the ball. The ball can be shot and headers can be controlled with the ball's acceleration and heading. Over the years FIFA has also made some attempts to represent the game as realistically as possible on other platforms, such as the pitch environment, player movements, and crowd sounds. FIFA games have previously differentiated themselves from each other through their ability to include a number of different features. While FIFA Mobile offers arcade-style action, FIFA Ultimate Team gives you the opportunity to manage your collection of real world players, and FIFA 12 introduced MyClub. Now with FIFA 22, we've gone one step further by offering even more depth to all the modes we already have. FIFA 22 We wanted to create a football game that feels fast and fast-paced. It's a game that anyone can pick up and play for a few minutes, but also one with depth and a high level of tactical interaction. We also wanted to address real-life issues that you see from a player's perspective. We've completely redesigned the swing and spin cycle movements, as it has been a common complaint that the timing on these movements isn't quite right. We also worked on the intelligence of the pitch, the pitch conditions, and more to bring the game closer to reality. We believe that the mobile versions of the FIFA games have a special place in this generation of the FIFA series. We wanted to bring our mobile optimisation efforts to the main game so that all fans can enjoy the game on any platform they use.
