Fairyland 3 Tests Booklet Rar

paste: how did you come up with the idea of i hate fairyland? skottie young: i remember i was reading the mad magazine comic and there was a story that was just a huge line drawing of a little girl named gertrude who was on her fifth or sixth trip to fairyland. there was a line on the back that said, "its about time gertrude gave up and went home" and i found that line hilarious. i love that line and i really wanted to do a story about that. if youre familiar with a lot of my work, you'd know that i have a tendency to do this with every story. i love the idea of playing with fairy tales and old-fashioned tropes and seeing where it leads. most people have grown up watching fairy tales and their impact is often deeper than they realize. a lot of the things that kids are afraid of are very much justified, like the wolf jumping out of the closet. that's a scary thing. if you're able to talk about those things in a lighthearted way, even with the darker elements, it can be very impactful. it really is about playing with these tropes and seeing what they mean. i really wanted to make something with that same kind of playfulness and that same kind of imagination. this is a version of fairyland where everything is a little bit more real. where you can actually see the elements. and you can see the elements interacting. and the spirits interact with each other. this is a slightly heightened version of fairyland. it's a world where it's very, very important to pay attention and listen, because this is a world where you can get killed. and so if you don't pay attention you can get hurt. and so i wanted this to be a world where people were kind of at risk. so that was the idea of this version of fairyland. 5ec8ef588b
