doomed! well, now you'll need to fix this. uninstall the server that was already running on the computer. you do this by going to programs and features and clicking on the world of warcraft server. then click on the uninstall button.

when you do that, it should un-install the server immediately. install windows 2000 back into the hard drive. go to your wow directory. there is a file called realmlist.wtf open it with notepad. delete everything, and write set realmlist 127.0.1 in it. to start your server go to your c:/ac web ultimate repack/ directory and run control panel.exe, then click on the first three buttons (we don't need apache, it just slows down your computer). we're finished! you can play now on your own wow server for free! alright, you've had your server up for a while and you want to check it out.

this is an important part of setting up any server, its the first step and is critical. open up realmlist and look for the ip that you set up earlier. if it didnt work, no big deal, let's just re-do the steps and make sure you get it right. alright, now you've got your server up, now we need to install the games. open up winrar.exe (or any archiver). put the wow data folder you created earlier into c:/ac web ultimate repack/wow/data. press the archive button. enter a name for the archive and click ok. now, repeat those steps with the wotlk and cata data folders. in the archive dialog in winrar.exe, set the type to both cata and wotlk. close the winrar.exe and go into c:/ac web ultimate repack/wow/data. open up each folder you created. set them all to exe. you should have two files for each. those are the expansions. in each of the folders, you should have an.xml file. rename that to.zip. if it doesnt work, just unzip the one you saved to c:/ (the wotlk one). 5ec8ef588b
